

Children embody hope.

(Novalis)

We have the great privilege of being able to turn our hobby into a career and thereby give pleasure to many people with our music and shows, and to also provide them with a little island of relaxation to help them leave behind the daily grind.

During conversations we have had after our shows, we are, and have often been, confronted with the fate of various fans, which has actually led to the long-growing wish to become involved in social causes. Although we had already made a start in this direction, our efforts until now, were always solo efforts.

In the papers, we recently read about the founding of the LR Global Kids Fund. We then made a spontaneous decision to do what we can for needy children - not through some administrative machinery, but in a place where we can make sure that the money arrives where it's really needed, right on our own doorstep, here in Germany! You don't necessarily have to travel to Third World countries to provide help!

If you take a good, hard look at the world, you see so many people whose fate cannot leave you cold. And since we now also have a child in the family, our little Daniel, who is growing up under the watchful gaze of his parents, grandparents, his aunts and other relatives, we have noticed, during conversations and encounters, when at the doctor or visiting a hospital, just how difficult it is to give every child this kind of warmth! There's too little money and too little time for love and affection! And these sad circumstances touched us and made us pensive.

These children, the ones who are innocent victims of these situations, are the kids to whom we wish to dedicate ourselves. We want enable the eyes of sick children to shine once again, to help them laugh and find pleasure in their lives and with their families. Together with our profession, we couldn't imagine a more wonderful task.

Children are our future, and it pays to fight for the future! That's what we are speaking up for - we, the Geschwister Hofmann
